NEW QUESTION: 1

Click the Exhibit button.

A customer created a security policy and is not receiving any logs from permitted sessions, you are asked to obtain the logs for the customer.

Which parameter must you add to the configuration shown in the exhibit to accomplish this task?

- A. set system syslog file traffic-log any any
- B. set system syslog file traffic-log match "traffic_session".
- C. set default-permit then log session-close
- D. set default-permit then count

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

To send security policy logs to a file named traffic-log on the SRX Series device:

[\[email#160;protected\]](#)# set system syslog file traffic-log any any

[\[email#160;protected\]](#)# set system syslog file traffic-log match "RT_FLOW_SESSION"

In the example above, traffic log messages are sent to a separate log file named traffic-log. The severity level is set to any so that the traffic log messages are captured. Only log messages that match RT_FLOW_SESSION, which identifies traffic log messages, are sent to the traffic-log file.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Which choice below is NOT an example of an issue-specific policy?

- A. Defined router ACLs
- B. Unfriendly employee termination policy
- C. E-mail privacy policy
- D. Virus-checking disk policy

Answer: A

Explanation:

Answer c is an example of a system-specific policy, in this case the router's access control lists. The other three answers are examples of issue-specific policy, as defined by NIST. Issue-specific policies are similar to program policies, in that they are not technically focused. While program policy is traditionally more general and strategic (the organization's computer security program, for example), issue-specific policy is a nontechnical policy addressing a single or specific issue of concern to the organization, such as the procedural guidelines for checking disks brought to work or e-mail privacy concerns. System-specific policy is technically focused and addresses only one computer system or
