NEW QUESTION: 4

Your network is configured as shown in the exhibit. (Click the Exhibit button.)

The network contains a server named TMG1. TMG1 runs Microsoft Forefront Threat Management Gateway (TMG) 2010 and has a default gateway of 131.107.1.2.

You need to ensure that TMG1 can connect to the Internet and to the client computers in all of the internal subnets.

What should you do on TMG1?

Exhibit:

- A. Change the default gateway to 192.168.1.1.
- B. Run `route -p add 192.168.2.0 netmask 255.255.255.0 192.168.1.1`.
- C. Run `route -p add 192.168.1.0 netmask 255.255.255.0 192.168.2.1`.
- D. Change the default gateway to 192.168.2.1.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Because TMG1 has an interface with an IP on the 192.168.2.x network, it should be able to communicate with Subnet2 (192.168.2.0/24) fine. What it needs a route to Subnet1.

Router1 has this route on it's interface, and is connected to Subnet2. Without TMG1 knowing about that interface or router, however, it won't be able to communicate beyond Subnet2. So the correct command is as follows:

route -p add 192.168.1.0 netmask 255.255.255.0 192.168.2.1
```

This tells TMG1 that traffic for the 192.168.1.0/24 network should be handled by the router with 192.168.2.1, which is correct.

WRONG ANSWERS

route -p add 192.168.2.0 netmask 255.255.255.0 192.168.1.1.

This command would say that all traffic for Subnet2 should be routed through 192.168.1.1, but we already have an interface connected directly to Subnet2.

Changing the default gateway won't help, as this only allows us to communicate with 1 subnet or the other, not both.
