NEW QUESTION: 3

Your company has a main office and five branch offices. Each office is configured as a separate Active Directory site.

You have an Exchange Server 2010 SP1 organization that contains one Hub Transport server in each site and an Edge Transport server in the main office site.

You add a disclaimer to all internal and external email messages sent by users in the company. You discover that the email messages sent from one of the branch offices do not include the disclaimer.

You need to ensure that all email messages include the disclaimer.

What should you do?

- A. Modify the cache settings of the branch office Hub Transport servers.

- B. Restart the Microsoft Exchange System Attendant.
- C. Force Active Directory replication on the branch office domain controllers.
- D. Export all transport rules from the Hub Transport server in the main office. Import the transport rules in the branch office Hub Transport server.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Replication of transport rules across an organization depends on Active Directory replication. Replication time between Active Directory domain controllers varies depending on the number of sites in the organization, slow links, and other factors outside the control of Exchange. When you configure transport rules in your organization, make sure that you consider replication delays.

NEW QUESTION: 4

A mother called the physician's office to ask if it would help relieve her small daughter's abdominal pain if she gave an enema and placed a heating pad on the abdomen. Her daughter has a fever and has vomited twice.

The nurse's response is based on the knowledge that:

- A. Heat would help to relax the abdominal muscles and relieve her pain
- B. The symptoms could easily have been caused by constipation, which an enema would relieve
- C. Complaints of stomach ache are common in young children and are generally best ignored
- D. Both heat and enemas stimulate intestinal motility and could increase the risk of perforation

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

(A) Constipation does not cause fever or vomiting but may cause anorexia. Risk of perforation outweighs the possible benefits of an enema. (B) Heat will not relieve her symptoms but will increase intestinal motility and increase the risk of perforation. (C) Heat and enemas are contraindicated where severe abdominal pain is suspected because they increase intestinal motility and the risk of perforation. (D) Complaints accompanied by physical symptoms such as pain, anorexia, and fever should never be ignored.
