NEW QUESTION: 3
Everything else being equal, the internal rate of return IRR) of an investment project will be lower if:
A. Cash inflows are received later in the life of the project
B. Cash inflows are larger.
C. The investment cost is lower.
D. The project has a shorter payback period.
Answer: A
Explanation:
The IRR is the discount rate at which the net present value is zero. Because the present value of a dollar is higher the sooner it is received, projects with later cash flows will have lower net present values for any given discount rate than will projects with earlier cash flows, if other factors are constant. Hence projects with later cash flows will have a lower IRR A company that annually reviews its investment opportunities and selects appropriate capital expenditures for the coming year is presented with two projects, called Project A and Project B. Best estimates indicate that the investment outlay for Project A is US and for Project B. is LI: $ 1 million. The projects are considered to be equally risky. Project A is expected to general cash inflows of US $40,010 at the end of each year for 2 years. Project B. is expected to generate cash inflows of US $700,000 at the end of the first year and US $500,000 at the end of the second year. The company has a cost of capital of 8%.
