NEW QUESTION: 1

What two things does a router do when it forwards a packet? (Choose two.)

- A. updates the destination IP address
- B. computes the destination host address
- C. forwards ARP requests
- D. switches the packet to the appropriate outgoing interfaces
- E. determines the next hop on the path

Answer: D,E

Explanation:

A primary function of a router is to forward packets toward their destination. This is accomplished by using a switching function, which is the process used by a router to accept a packet on one interface and forward it out of another interface. A key responsibility of the switching function is to encapsulate packets in the appropriate data link frame type for the outgoing data link and determining the next hop device to send the frame to.
