NEW QUESTION: 1

Which statement about the Cisco Meraki cloud architecture is true?

- A. All data flows through the Cisco Meraki cloud.
- B. Devices are configured in the cloud on first use and then managed locally after they are set up.
- C. All Meraki devices are managed locally by default
- D. Management data flows to the Cisco Meraki cloud and user traffic flows directly to its destination on the LAN or across the WAN.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Meraki's out-of-band control plane separates network management data from user data. Management data (e.g., configuration, statistics, monitoring, etc.) flows from Meraki devices (wireless access points, switches, and security appliances) to Meraki's cloud over a secure Internet connection. User data (web browsing, internal applications, etc.) does not flow through the cloud, instead flowing directly to its destination on the LAN or across the WAN.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Characterizing an existing network requires gathering as much information about the network as possible. Which of these choices describes the preferred order for the information-gathering process?

- A. existing documentation and organizational input, site and network audits, traffic analysis
- B. traffic analysis, existing documentation and organizational input, site and network audits
- C. site and network audits, traffic analysis, existing documentation and organizational input
- D. site and network audits, existing documentation and organizational input, traffic analysis

Answer: A

Explanation:

This section describes the steps necessary to characterize the existing network infrastructure and all sites. This process requires three steps:

Step 1. Gather existing documentation about the network, and query the organization to discover additional information. Organization input, a network audit, and traffic analysis provide the key information you need. (Note that existing documentation may be inaccurate.)

Step 2. Perform a network audit that adds detail to the description of the network. If possible, use traffic-analysis information to augment organizational input when you are describing the applications and protocols used in the network. Step 3. Based on your network characterization, write a summary report that describes the health of the network. With this information, you can propose hardware and software upgrades to support the network requirements and the organizational requirements.
