NEW QUESTION: 1

When we encrypt or decrypt data there is a basic operation involving ones and zeros where they are compared in a process that looks something like this:

0101 0001 Plain text

0111 0011 Key stream

0010 0010 Output

What is this cryptographic operation called?

- A. Logical-NOR
- B. Bit Swapping
- C. Decryption
- D. Exclusive-OR

Answer: D

Explanation:

When we encrypt data we are basically taking the plaintext information and applying some key material or keystream and conducting something called an XOR or Exclusive-OR operation. The symbol used for XOR is the following: This is a type of cipher known as a stream cipher.

The operation looks like this: 0101 0001 Plain text 0111 0011 Key stream 0010 0010 Output (ciphertext)

As you can see, it's not simple addition and the XOR Operation uses something called a truth table that explains why $0+1=1$ and $1+1=0$.

The rules are simple, if both bits are the same the result is zero, if both bits are not the same the result is one.

The following answers are incorrect:

-Bit Swapping: Incorrect. This isn't a known cryptographic operations.

-Logical NOR: Sorry, this isn't correct but is where only $0+0=1$. All other combinations of $1+1$, $1+0$ equals 0. More on NOR here.

-Decryption: Sorry, this is the opposite of the process of encryption or, the process of applying the keystream to the plaintext to get the resulting encrypted text.
