NEW QUESTION: 2

The best approach for minimizing the likelihood of software incompatibilities leading to unintelligible messages is for a company and its customers to:

- A. Agree to synchronize their updating of EDI-related software.
- B. Acquire their software from the same software vendor.
- C. Each write their own version of the EDI-related software.
- D. Agree to use the same software in the same ways indefinitely.

Answer: A

Explanation:

EDI entails the exchange of common business data converted into standard message formats. Thus, two crucial requirements are that the participants agree on transaction formats and that translation software be developed to convert messages into a form understandable by other companies. Thus, if one company changes its software, its trading partners must also do so.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which two statements are true about the Bulk Export of Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Audit Log Events?

- A. Exported log files list a single audit event per line using csv format.
- B. Exported logs remain available indefinitely.
- C. It will be available immediately after the Bulk Export request.
- D. Exported logs are available in the object storage buckets in your tenancy.
- E. You can specify only one region in your bulk export request.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

You can request a bulk export of audit logs, and within 3-4 business days Oracle support will begin making copies of the logs and adding them to buckets in your tenancy. The export includes logs for the specified regions, beginning after you make the request and continuing into the future. Exported logs remain available indefinitely.

Specify all the regions you want exported in your request. If you only request some regions, then decide later you want to add other regions, you must make another request. Files list a single audit event per line. but in json format
